Superheros are legend of Peerless power

Abstract: The stories, books, poems, magazines are loved by children and are called as Children Literature. The other name of children literature is Juvenile Literature as well. Marvel superheroes like Captain America, Iron Man, Thor, Hulk, and Spiderman are loved by children. These superheroes really risk their life and serve to the people. They also have family, relations, and lover and apart from that they never care of self. Each and every moment they commit in adventures and overcome that situation. This is the real symbol of superheroes. They use the will power and make it super power unlike the other people in the film. This paper focuses on how the heroes make of will power into the super power.

Keywords: Superheroes, Marvel, Will power, child literature, comics, super power.

Heroes are made by the path they choose, but the superheroes are made for the people. Superheroes are like a God; they will do only good things in the world. There is a superhero inside all of us; we just need the courage to put on the cape. The superhero breaks the obstacle and adversities and overcomes them. The superhero will have many roles; they are like Kings of the world, Kings of will power and legends of knowledge.

Superheroes are the ones who fight the evil in the universe and save people. Without superheroes our childhood is empty. They sacrifice their joy, happiness, friendship, family, etc. their will power and confidence make them stronger. Every superhero has a past, every past has a secret. Not all are born with super power, (for example, Captain America, Iron Man) their will power and talent made them a superhero. Everyone have a unique power we are the one who is responsible to identify our talent. They identified their talent and converted their talent into powers; today the world calls them superheroes. The chance and situation are here, use it and live like a superhero.

Every superhero are not body builders, army men or in air force. The role Peter Parker from Spiderman is one of the weakest heroes we have seen. He is just a student who wears nerdy specs and has very weak physique. The situation and his decision made him Spiderman. He might be weak but his confident level and his way of thinking is abnormal. That made him a hero.

No one is weakest person in the world; their thoughts may not be sacrificial. In every superhero's story, they live in a very small house and they live their life as a low- or middle-class people. They too have struggled but they never give up. It shows that everyone is a superhero, if they are ready to never give up and boldly face their struggles and problems. That is the only way to solve a problem, to face it. Small things like this tell everyone in the world is superheroes. Our pain, problems, life, goal, money, emotions, love kills the superhero within ourselves.

Be motivated, help others and respect their feelings. This is the way to be a gentleman. Everyone in the world is running for their own life, they never care about the society they dwell in. Superheroes are the only ones that think about the society and the public. This is the reason why superheroes are inspirational persons. One of the best examples for this category is our Captain America. He is very small and thin but his will power and confident level is too high. He wants to join in army but his physical weakness made him not eligible to be one. He was placed under the rejected list to his disappointment, yet he never gave up.

His constant desire led to a turning point in his life to become more of a person than he dreamt off. Though he was the one with a very bad past and had been badly criticised person. His positive way of thinking made him into a superhero. He is one of the greatest inspirations for all. The second innings of his life changed his whole career; he lost his lover and friends, etc. Sacrifice made a superhero. Captain America is the best example for every superhero.

Ironman is one of the very stylish and richest persons in Avengers, his talent and confidence made him a strong avenger. Lot of fans like Ironman because of his attitude. This is one of the notable things in this area. Attitude is very important for every superhero. Every superhero has uniqueness. Every superhero had different experience and different way of thinking. The thing that unites all of them is their duty to save the ones in need. In my opinion, Wolverine is one of the most struggled superheroes because he withstood a lot of painful and tough situation. He never gave up because of these. This is another important quality for superheroes. He is also inspirational as his attitude is unique and his powers made him more confident and boosted his will power.

Mostly superheroes are looking smart and elegant. That's not true; they (directors or marketers) just show them like that because they need some personal marketing. Not every superhero is handsome chunks, for example, the movie Deadpool shows a much distorted face as the hero. This shows that beauty doesn't matter just talent is enough. Dedication, will power, sacrifice, confidence, positive thoughts makes a superhero. Every human have unique power. Some people are talented, some are good in the heart, and some are unique and so on.

Everyone is a superhero in the world because people hide their emotions for their family and live for them. They are the real heroes. Not only these people, other people also sacrifice their own life and live for others. They are "the superheroes". Situation is the first important thing, then our reaction that decides if we become a superhero or not. Many superhero movies were released to teach how superheroes react to the problems and save others' lives. Every superhero is inspirational and role model for the others. If one has to live like superhero it is not by physique, dress or power but having a heart to help others.
